Portfolio Report

We chose these stocks on July 29, 2025, keeping the global situation in mind. We saw that things like supply chain issues and rising prices in other countries could be a problem. So, our main idea was to bet on the Indian economy. That's why we picked companies that do well when people in India are spending, like Hindustan Unilever, Asian Paints, and Ultratech Cement. We felt this would help protect our investment from global shocks. To balance things out, we also added a pharma stock like SunPharma for safety and Waaree Energies to get in on the growing trend of green energy.

Benchmark Index - Sensex

Economic Overview

Over the past six months, the Indian economy has demonstrated strong momentum, reinforcing its status as the world's fastest-growing major economy. The period was marked by robust GDP growth, moderating inflation, and stable macroeconomic policies, painting a confident picture of sustained expansion.

Key Highlights

Robust GDP Growth: The economy is estimated to have grown by 6.8%-7.0% in Q1 of FY 2025-26 (April-June), surpassing initial forecasts. This performance has propelled India to become the world's fourth-largest economy.

Inflation Under Control: A major success has been the taming of inflation. Retail (CPI) inflation fell to a multi-year low of 2.82% in May 2025, significantly easing pressure on household budgets.

Strong Sectoral Performance: Manufacturing: Activity surged to a 14-month high, with the PMI reaching 58.4 in June. Services & Agriculture: Both sectors continue to be strong pillars of growth.

Stable Policy Environment: The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) maintained the key repo rate at 5.50%, balancing growth support with inflation control. The Union Budget continued its focus on high capital expenditure for infrastructure.

Improving Employment: The unemployment rate showed a positive trend, declining to a three-month low of 5.2% in July 2025.

Resilient External Sector: India's global trade position remains strong, with record-high exports ($824.9 billion in FY 2024-25) and robust Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) inflows, reflecting high global investor confidence.

How Global events Affected our Portfolio From 29th July to 20th August, 2025

1. Uncertainty Over U.S. Federal Reserve's Interest Rate Path

The Situation:

In the last week of July, the U.S. Federal Reserve had its policy meeting (FOMC). While they held interest rates steady, the commentary was "hawkish," meaning they were more concerned about inflation than a slowing economy. The official meeting minutes, released on August 18th, confirmed this stance, showing a divided committee with several members unwilling to consider rate cuts until inflation was definitively moving towards their 2% target. This dashed market hopes for an early rate cut.

Global Impact:

Stronger U.S. Dollar: When the Fed signals higher rates for longer, the U.S. dollar strengthens.

Foreign Investor Outflow: Foreign Institutional Investors (FIIs) tend to pull money out of emerging markets like India and move it to the U.S. for safer, higher returns.

Impact on the Portfolio:

Negative Impact on TCS: While a stronger dollar is good for TCS's revenues (which are in USD), the company is highly sensitive to FII activity. As FIIs sold their holdings in major Indian IT stocks to move capital, TCS would have faced downward pressure on its stock price.

Negative Impact on Tata Motors & Ultratech Cement: These companies are capital-intensive and often rely on debt for expansion. The signal that global interest rates would stay high makes future borrowing more expensive, which can worry investors about future growth and profitability.

Relatively Insulated: Hindustan Unilever, SunPharma, and Piramal Pharma would be least affected. Their demand is driven by domestic consumption and healthcare needs, making them ""defensive"" stocks that investors often prefer during times of global uncertainty."

2. Spike in Global Crude Oil Prices

The Situation: In the first week of August 2025, renewed geopolitical tensions in the Middle East led to a sudden disruption in shipping through a key strait. This caused Brent Crude oil prices to spike from around $85 to $92 per barrel in a matter of days, creating fresh worries about global inflation.

Global Impact:

Inflationary Pressure: Higher oil prices mean higher energy and transportation costs for almost every industry worldwide.

Impact on Trade Deficit: For a major importer of oil like India, this widens the trade deficit and can put pressure on the Indian Rupee.

Negative Impact on Tata Motors: Higher fuel prices can dampen consumer sentiment, especially for non-electric vehicles, potentially slowing down sales forecasts.

Impact on the Portfolio:

Direct Negative Impact on Asian Paints: Crude oil derivatives are a primary raw material for paint companies. A sharp rise in oil prices directly squeezes their profit margins, leading to a negative reaction in its stock price.

Indirect Negative Impact on HUL & Ultratech Cement: Both companies have significant logistics and energy costs. Higher fuel prices would increase their operational expenses, potentially impacting their quarterly earnings.

3. Weaker-Than-Expected Economic Data from China

The Situation: Around August 15th, China released its industrial production and retail sales data for July. The numbers came in significantly below economists' expectations, confirming fears that China's post-pandemic economic recovery was faltering and facing structural issues.

Global Impact:

Fear of Global Slowdown: As the world's second-largest economy and a manufacturing hub, a slowdown in China signals weaker global demand for everything from raw materials to finished goods.

Pressure on Commodity Prices: This news would typically cause a fall in prices of industrial metals.

Impact on Your Portfolio:

Direct Negative Impact on Tata Motors: The company's luxury car brand, Jaguar Land Rover (JLR), has significant sales exposure to the Chinese market. Weak economic data from China directly translates to a poor sales outlook for JLR, which is a major contributor to Tata Motors' revenue and profitability.

Indirect Impact on the Broader Market: Fears of a global slowdown can create a general "risk-off" sentiment, causing investors to sell stocks across the board. This would have created headwinds for your entire portfolio.

Reinforced Flight to Quality: This event would have further encouraged investors to move toward safer, domestic-focused companies, potentially cushioning the fall for HUL, Sun Pharma, and Titan compared to the more globally-linked stocks.

Reason for Choosing HUL In our Portfolio

- 1) HUL holds over 85% market share in key segments with steady volume growth, showing strong market leadership and resilience.
- 2) The company reported record quarterly sales of ₹ 16,514 crore and PAT of ₹ 2,862 crore in 2025, reflecting solid financial performance.
- 3) HUL is expanding in high-growth areas like health and beauty with strategic acquisitions and innovations to drive future growth.
- 4) It offers consistent dividends and plans value unlocking through a business demerger, supporting shareholder returns and flexibility.

Price Changes in HUL - 29th July to 20th August

- 1) Hindustan Unilever's stock started with a minor decline on July 30, 2025, but quickly gained momentum with over 5% rise on July 31 and August 1. These early gains reflected strong investor optimism and positive market sentiment.
- 2) In mid-August, the stock saw a sharp correction, falling nearly 8% on August 12. This decline indicated profit-taking and some market uncertainty affecting the share price temporarily. Moderate losses continued in the following days as volatility increased.
- 3) Late August showed recovery as the stock rebounded with gains of 5.4% on August 18 and 2.5% on August 19. Renewed buying interest signaled returning investor confidence and helped stabilize the price after mid-month drops.
- 4) Overall, the stock displayed significant volatility over the period, with alternating phases of sharp gains and corrections. This behavior highlights the dynamic market conditions affecting Hindustan Unilever's share price.
- 5) Hindustan Unilever reported stable FMCG demand and a 5% underlying sales growth in the recent quarter, supported by strategic investments in portfolio transformation. This indicates confidence in sustained recovery and long-term growth prospects for the company.

ReasonforChoosingAsianpaints LTDInourP

Asian Paints remains the market leader in India’s decorative paints sector, maintaining strong brand recognition and customer loyalty. It holds a substantial market share, supported by its diverse product portfolio including paints, waterproofing, and home decor solutions. This leadership ensures stability and competitive advantage.

- 1) The company is investing heavily in backward integration and capacity expansion, notably a Rs 3,250 crore manufacturing facility in Gujarat. This plant will reduce import dependency by producing key raw materials in-house, improving margins and cost efficiency in the long term, which positions Asian Paints well for sustainable profitability.
- 2)Despite recent challenges like urban demand slowdown and margin pressures, Asian Paints continues to innovate with new product launches like Apex Ultima Suprema Air-O-Clean and Nilaya Wall Wrap. These premium offerings target growth segments and help differentiate the brand against rising competition.
- 3) Financially, Asian Paints shows resilience with a solid return on equity of around 26% and maintains a healthy dividend payout exceeding 60%. While recent quarterly profits softened due to macroeconomic conditions, the company’s strong cash reserves and manageable debt support its stability.

- 1) Asian Paints' share price rose initially due to optimism around cyclical recovery and easing raw material prices. On July 29, the stock closed near ₹2,415, benefiting from falling crude oil prices, which reduce paint manufacturing costs and improved margin expectations.
- 2) Mid-period, the price saw volatility linked to softer demand and muted volume growth. The company reported a 44.9% YoY profit decline in Q4 FY25 with net profit at ₹692 crore. This earnings dip caused investor caution and price corrections.
- 3) Asian Paints introduced premium products and expanded capacity investments. This helped restore confidence, leading to a steady rebound by mid-August. By August 20, the share price steadied near ₹2,570 as market sentiment improved on structural growth prospects.
- 4) The company’s gross margins improved by 120 basis points sequentially, reflecting cost-saving measures.

Volume growth in urban markets dropped 2.5% YoY, but rural sales grew 5.1%, supporting the recovery outlook.

- 5) Overall, the stock's price movement reflected a balance of macroeconomic headwinds and strong fundamental initiatives. Investors reacted to quarterly results, cost factors, and growth strategies, resulting in a fluctuating but upward trajectory during this period.

UltraTech Cement is the largest cement producer in India and among the top globally (excluding China), with a consolidated domestic grey cement capacity of over 183 million tons per annum as of 2025. Its ambitious expansion program continues to add production capacity both organically and through acquisitions

1) The company posted a 49% year-on-year jump in net profit in Q1 FY26, with consolidated net sales rising significantly. For the fiscal year ended March 2025, sales volumes and revenues were among the highest in the industry, showing robust demand and operational efficiency.

2) UltraTech has demonstrated the ability to manage operating costs effectively, with energy costs declining by 12-14% year-on-year due to lower fuel prices and efficiency measures. This has bolstered profit margins even during input cost volatility.

3) UltraTech continues to reward shareholders with substantial dividends. For FY25, the Board recommended a dividend of Rs. 77.50 per share (775%), underlining its cash generation strength and shareholder commitment.

Price Changes in UltraTech Cement LTD - 29th July to 20th August

1) On 29th July 2025: Stock price closed at around ₹12,221. This was before any major quarterly results announcements, so the price was relatively stable with minor fluctuations

2) Early August 2025 (around 7-8 August): UltraTech Cement announced its Q1 FY26 results with a strong 49% year-on-year jump in profit after tax (PAT) and near 13% rise in revenue. The company showed robust volume growth of about 9.7%, and improved cost efficiencies due to lower energy prices

3) Mid-August 2025: Continued positive momentum with investor confidence supported by the company's expansion of grey cement capacity, successful integration of acquisitions like India Cements, and sound financial health.

4) On 20th August 2025: UltraTech Cement announced the sale of a 6.49% stake in India Cements via an Offer For Sale (OFS), to comply with regulatory limits on promoter holding. This stake sale was estimated at approximately ₹744 crore (~$85.6 million). At the time, UltraTech's holding in India Cements reduced from 81.49% to around 75%.

Reason for Choosing Titan Company In our Portfolio

Titan Company Ltd, a Tata Group enterprise, is India’s leading lifestyle company renowned for its trusted brands in watches, jewellery, eyewear, and accessories. With over three decades of excellence, Titan has established a strong pan-India presence and continues to set benchmarks in quality, design, and consumer trust

- 1) Strong growth potential as Titan is evolving into a 360-degree lifestyle brand with expanding categories like jewellery, watches, eyewear, and fashion accessories.
- 2) Increasing market opportunities due to growing upper-middle-income households in India and low market share in many categories, leaving room for significant share gain.
- 3) Robust brand equity, digital maturity, and customer relationships providing a competitive edge and growth scalability.
- 4) Strategic focus on innovation, omni-channel integration, and quality customer experiences ensuring long-term sustainable growth.

Price Changes in Titan Company - 29th July to 20th August

- 1) On July 29, 2025, Titan's stock price dropped to approximately ₹3,411.70 (-2.36%), reflecting a sharp correction after a previous high close. This could be linked to profit-taking by investors or a market-wide correction.
- 2) During the first week of August, the stock showed recovery with a steady rise, reaching around ₹3,468 by August 1. The rebound was fueled by renewed investor confidence possibly triggered by market stabilization or early hints of robust quarterly results
- 3) On August 5, 2025, Titan's share price gained momentum, moving up by about 1.84% compared to earlier levels, driven by positive market sentiment and anticipation of upcoming earnings.
- 4) A notable surge happened on August 18, 2025, with the price climbing to ₹3,554.80 (+1.87%). This is likely due to the company's strong quarterly earnings report, which saw a consolidated net profit increase by over 52% in the June quarter—an event that boosted investor enthusiasm significantly.
- 5) By August 20, 2025, the stock price continued its upward trajectory, reaching around ₹3,595 (+0.75%), supported further by stable buying interest and positive market outlook in the jewelry and watches sector, where Titan operates.
- 6) The prices on August 21 and 22, hovered around ₹3,616-3,621, showing steady confidence among investors post-earnings announcement, with only marginal fluctuations indicating a consolidation phase after the strong gains.
